Rod Quantock

'A master of effortless comedy' Sydney Morning Herald

'A living Melbourne treasure' The Melbourne Age

Since his days at Melbourne University more than twenty years ago, Rod Quantock's work as a comedy writer, producer and performer for television, stage and private & corporate clients has earned countless accolades.

Going to a Rod Quantock show is a little like going to church. You can pretty much predict the topic of the sermon, you know you'll be surrounded by people of the same creed, and you'll come away having had your world-view reaffirmed. The bonus is you get to laugh yourself silly at the same time.

Rod's interactive people skills range from inventive "busking" at major trade shows ("the best trade show ever") to hosting special events ("an outstanding contribution to the success of our conference") to after dinner speaking ("the best conference dinner anyone had ever attended") to just about any situation where people need a versatile, flexible performer. And he does bus trips.

Rod Quantock has performed at every Big Laugh Comedy Festival. In 2006 he is creating a new show on a Sydney Ferries Rivercat. Leaving from The Parramatta Terminal for two nights only, Rod expands his legendary bus show onto the water taking passengers into the wild waters of the Parramatta river for a couple of hours of maritime mayhem.

'Bizarre, fresh, theatrically dangerous and unpredictable' The Guardian
